Sinclair Merger Taking Form

A late wire from New York advises that the much talked of merger of the Sinclair Oil Refining corporation and the Sinclair Gulf corporation is at last taken definite form. It is understood that a new Sinclair company, incorporated, or possibly some other appropriate name, will be organized for the purpose of taking over these two corporations. It is pointed out today that with the consolidation of these two properties into one large organization advances for each would be gained and there would result one of the most important producing and refining concerns in the country.

The New Sinclair Building

With the report that the merger of the Sinclair Oil corporation and the Sinclair Gulf is taking a definite form which news all over the country has anticipated it is nevertheless true that a new Sinclair company, incorporated, or possibly some other appropriate name, will be organized for the purpose of taking over these two corporations. It is pointed out today that with the consolidation of these two properties into one large organization advances for each would be gained and there would result one of the most important producing and refining concerns in the country.

The New York Times of May 14 says that Harry F. Sinclair, president of the Sinclair corporation, awaiting the purchase, said: "We have purchased the Liberty Tower building because we require more office space than we have found it possible to lease in the financial district and because we regarded it as essential to our future development that the corporation have a substantial and permanent home office in New York."

It is described as being 33 stories, 500 feet high, and designed with modified Gothic style, adorned with three tall tiers of bays, set between pilasters crowned with a man and having pinnacles finished with carved stone eagles perched thereon.

The building has been assessed by the city at $95,000 and was held at $2,500,000. The rental value is approximately $254,000 or about $15,000 more than in July, 1918.

Cato Sells to Retire

The New York Tribune announces the fact that within a few weeks the Hon. Cato Sell will retire from his position as Indian Commissioner, and that Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott will succeed him in that very important position, the most important of all so far as Tulsa is concerned, in the entire list.

The change will probably not be made until the matter of a concession in the way of a reduction of the royalty on gas has been made to the gas lessees in the Osage who in their anxiety to acquire leases have overstepped the bounds of reason as was pointed out in the column at the time. It will not cause any shedding of tears if the government sees fit to hold them to their exorbitant bids, that is, not in this case.

General Scott, great Indian fighter and diplomat, will succeed to the position. The following from an eastern paper gives a good review of General Scott's career, which is printed in full for the reason that he has so much to do with the welfare of this community, which once installed in his new position.

CAMP DIX, N. Y., May 10.—Without ceremony, Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, commandant at this cantonment since January, 1918, today turned over his post to Maj. Gen.

15-11 was also a failure in the deep sand having drilled into water. The Turman well is located practically in the center of all this deep drilling and it is somewhat puzzling as to just what direction the producing sand would take now, were it to prove a pay streak now.

Drilling Beginning on Desdemona Town Lots

According to the latest news received in Tulsa on the Desdemona district of the Duke pool, activity is beginning to take on the same dimensions in the town of Desdemona as was first noticeable in the town of Burnburnett when drilling first commenced there. A number of new locations have been made and new work is progressing rapidly.

Among the late reports from the district are the following:

The Magnolia well on the Terrell farm in Gaston county near the Comanche border has been drilled 2,000 feet in the sand and is making 2,000 barrels of oil.

The Peerless Oil company's well on the Garth farm in Comanche county in the Duke field is making 1,400 barrels of oil, and the Cattleman Hog-Creek well is making 20,000 feet of gas with an 8 to 10 barrel showing of oil.

The Southwest Oil company, J. W. Gilliland is spudding in a test on the Madson farm about a half a mile north of the Duke well on the county line.

Livingston Activities

The Livingston Oil corporation are underdrilling No. 3, Lucinda Marshall, in 25-15-11, as they are casing off the well at the 2,300-foot sand and are going deeper.

At least two or three good producers might be made from the one well in the different sands in any of the Lynd farm wells, and

Indian Chief Getting Tiger Flats Well

The Indian Chief oil & Gas Co. is shut down at low feet in the 2,100-foot sand in the well in 8-12-12, and will drift in after shutting off the water which is coming from an upper sand. There is a strong showing of gas, and the well looks like it would make a very good producer.
